BIOGRAPHY

Lawrence Sondhaus was born in St. Louis, Missouri, in 1958. He received his B.A. at Elon University in 1980 and, after having studied as a Fulbright Scholar in Austria, he obtained his Ph.D at the University of Virginia in 1986.

His research interests span the period from the Napoleonic Era through the First World War, with a focus on Europe in general and on Germany and Austria-Hungary in particular. His fields of study include military and naval strategy and policy, with a special interest in the role of the cultural context in determining strategies and policies.

Dr. Sondhaus is Professor of History at the University of Indianapolis, where he has been a member of the faculty since 1987, serving for many years as head of the Department of History and Political Science.
